

COVID-19 Health Testing

Sterling will coordinate your flexible end-to-end testing program to support your resiliency and help protect your workforce

This is a stressful time for companies as they navigate through the pandemic and define new best practices to protect employees, customers, and the community.

At present, testing for COVID-19 is the most strategic approach to resume our daily lives and ensure safety in the workplace. As a result, Sterling is invested in finding efficient and effective approaches to manage the supply of testing while solutions are developed and improved.

Introducing Sterling's Robust, End-to-End COVID-19 Testing Program

To help ease the burden, Sterling is introducing innovative services and solutions to address the pandemic by coordinating a flexible end-to-end COVID-19 testing program. We designed a program that is:
