Medical License Monitoring

We proactively manage and monitor medical licensing to help you stay compliant

Challenges Healthcare Companies Face

Healthcare companies are required to verify professional licenses at the time of hire and upon renewal, but is that enough to ensure licenses stay in good standing? How much effort is spent chasing licensees for renewals and capturing primary source verifications?

Delegating manual monitoring to supervisors, or relying on self-disclosure, are solutions that leave companies vulnerable to potentially serious license issues.

Introducing Sterling's Medical Licensing Monitoring

Sterling can help you mitigate brand and regulatory risk by providing a much more efficient way for you to proactively identify those without valid medical licenses. Not only can we automate the ingestion and management of workforce directories, but we've done it in a new modern, intuitive interface. Our medical license solution monitors thousands of data sources so that you can identify and react to a licensing status change in days vs. months.

The Sterling Difference

Thorough Licensing Data Sources
Automatically monitor for license status changes and expirations across thousands of medical licensing bodies, including all state-regulated licenses

React Quickly to Risk
Send reminder notifications as expirations approach to help ensure timely renewals and automate the capture of primary source verifications

Automation Drives Efficiency
Simplify the ingestion and management of monitored licenses through an automated SFTP upload or intuitive user interface
