

Social Media Searches

An online search may reveal more about a person's true character.

Social Media Made Simple

In a little more than a decade, social media has become fundamental to the way billions engage with one another — now more than ever for easing pandemic isolation and building community.

As an essential part of everyday life, it's not surprising social media has influenced the world of recruitment with HR professionals using social network background checks for hiring and screening needs. Social media background checks provide vital information that help employers minimize risk of a bad hire.

Sterling has partnered with Fama to help organizations protect themselves by screening potential and current employees using publicly available online information. Our social media partnership reduces risk with a solution that enhances ethical decision-making and compliance by proactively identifying behaviors such as bigotry, sexism, and violence, and recognize practices that align with an organization's culture and values.

Transforming Social Media

Reduce Bias

Sterling leverages artificial intelligence, language processing, and image recognition to screen publicly available content for risky behaviors that reduce bias in hiring decisions

Robust Search

We screen behaviors on social media, as well as perform a thorough search on the publicly available web, that can easily be configured to reflect your hiring standards

Scale Globally

Fama's technology can be deployed in nearly every country and works across hundreds of languages

The Social Media Imperative

With more than half of the world's population on social media¹, it has become a norm in HR to rely on search engines for hiring and screening needs. According to a recent Harris Poll on behalf of CareerBuilder survey:

66%	of employers use search engines to conduct research on job candidates
NEARLY HALF	of employers check up on current employees on social media
7 IN 10	of employers use social networks to research job candidates
57%	of employers have found social or online content that caused them not to hire candidates
34%	of employers have reprimanded or fired an employee based on content found online
